Prime Minister Kishi and Foreign Minister Fujiyama met with Ambassador MacArthur today. The meeting was pursuant to the agreement reached in Washington between Foreign Minister Fujiyama and Secretary Dulles that following Foreign Minister Fujiyama's return to Tokyo, the present security arrangements between Japan and the United States would be re-examined through diplomatic channels with a view to adjusting them on a basis entirely consistent with the new era in relations between the two countries affirmed between Prime Minister Kishi and President Eisenhower in the Joint Communique of July 22, 1957.

The discussions today involved a preliminary exchange of views on security questions, including with regard to the possibility of replacing the present security treaty with a new security treaty. Consideration was also given to arrangements for continuing the discussions on this subject. It was agreed that there would be further meetings in the coming weeks to discuss these matters in greater detail.

Formula

Under arrangements made for the common defense, the United States has the use of certain bases in Japan. The deployment of United States forces and their equipment into bases in Japan and the operational use of these bases in an emergency would be a matter for joint consultation by the Japanese Government and the United States Government in the light of circumstances prevailing at the time.

DRAFT TREATY OF MUTUAL COOPERATION AND SECURITY
BETWEEN JAPAN AND THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

PREAMBLE

Japan and the United States of America

意
書

Desiring to strengthen the bonds of peace and friendship traditionally existing between them, and to uphold the principles of democracy, individual liberty, and the rule of law,

Desiring further to encourage closer economic cooperation between them and to promote conditions of stability and economic well being in their countries and in the Pacific area,

Reaffirming their faith in the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, and their desire to live in peace with all peoples and all governments,

Recognizing their inherent right of individual or collective self defense as affirmed in the Charter of the United Nations,

Having resolved to conclude a treaty of mutual cooperation and security,

Therefore agree as follows:

ARTICLE I

The Parties undertake, as set forth in the Charter of the United Nations, to settle any international disputes in which they may be involved by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security and justice are not endangered and to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

ARTICLE II

The Parties will contribute toward the further development of peaceful and friendly international relations by strengthening their free institutions, by bringing about a better understanding of the principles upon which these institutions are founded, and by promoting conditions of stability and well being. They will seek to eliminate conflict in their international economic policies and will encourage economic collaboration between them, including economic cooperation with other friendly and like-minded countries in the Pacific area.

ARTICLE III

In order more effectively to achieve the objectives of this Treaty, the Parties, separately and jointly, by means of continuous and effective self-help and mutual aid will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack and to prevent and counter subversive activities directed from without against their territorial integrity and political stability.

ARTICLE IV

The Parties will consult together regarding the implementation of this Treaty and whenever in the opinion of either of them the territorial integrity, political independence, or security of either of them is threatened in the Pacific.

ARTICLE V

Each Party recognizes that an armed attack in the Pacific directed against the territories or areas under the administrative control of the other Party would be dangerous to its own peace and safety and declares that it would act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes.

Any such armed attack and all measures taken as a result thereof shall be immediately reported to the Security Council of the United Nations. Such measures shall be terminated when the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to restore and maintain international peace and security.

ARTICLE VI

In furtherance of the objectives of this Treaty, the United States has the use of certain bases in Japan. With respect to the use of these bases and the status of United States Forces in Japan, the Administrative Agreement signed at Tokyo on February 28, 1952 as amended, shall continue in force.

ARTICLE VII

This Treaty does not affect and shall not be interpreted as affecting in any way the rights and obligations of the Parties under the Charter of the United Nations or the responsibility of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security.

ARTICLE VIII

This Treaty shall be ratified by the United States of America and Japan in accordance with their respective constitutional processes and will enter into force when the instruments of ratification thereof have been exchanged by them in Tokyo.

ARTICLE IX

The Security Treaty between Japan and the United States shall expire upon the entering into force of this Treaty.

ARTICLE X

This Treaty shall remain in force indefinitely. However, after the Treaty has been in force for 10 years either party may terminate it one year after notice has been given to the other party.
