Area Where Defunct Japanese Army Men Were Annihilated Completely during World War II; Iwojima Island to Be Turned Again into Base; Anti-Submarine Planes to Be Deployed in Emergency; Full Play to Be Given to Strategic Value; JDA Solidifies Policy

Since the JDA, during deliberations on the two defense-connected law revision bills at the current Diet session, has clarified its "unified view" as to the scope of actions by the MSDF, the strengthening of maritime defense power in response to this has become a task for the present. According to a clarification made by a JDA source on July 1, the JDA is said to have solidified its policy for using Iwojima Island as a base for anti-submarine patrol planes, in an emergency. Thus, the strategic value of the same Island, an area where a fierce battle was carried out during World War II, has come again into the limelight.

Runway, Etc., to Be Reinforced

The JDA is making preparations in the direction of reinforcing the runway on Iwojima Island during the current fiscal year and of securing permission as to take-off or landing at night. It is also planning to reconstruct the barracks there in the next fiscal year. It seems that the aim of these moves is to make strategic arrangements for the purpose of deploying anti-submarine planes on Iwojima Island in an emergency and of using the same Island as a "keystone" for the defense of the "Southeast Route Zone."

The scope of actions by the MSDF had been a pending question since April, 1952, when it was established. However, at the Lower House Cabinet Committee meeting on June 19, JDA Defense Bureau Director General KUBO clarified the following policy: "The limit of the surrounding sea areas will be several hundred nautical miles or so, and that of the Route Zone will be about 1,000 nautical miles." Thus, general prospects were obtained. The KUBO statement was made as a reply, when JSP member. Yanosuke NARAZAKI disclosed the secret documents of the JDA, and conducted pursuit, saying, "At the US-Japan administrative-level security consultations, held at the end of May, (the Japanese side) explained that the limit of surrounding sea areas is several hundred to about 1,000 nautical miles."

Moreove, at the same Committee meeting on June 21, Fore Ministry American Af. irs Bureau Director General OKAWARA stated that he has notified the US side, in written form, to the effect that the "replies, given at the Diet, are the Japanese Government's policy." Consequently, in regard to the scope of MSDF actions, the view that "the limit of surrounding sea areas is several hundred nautical miles or so, and that of the Route Zone is about 1,000 nautical miles," has been established as a virtually unified view, both at home and abroad.

In this connection, an MSDF Office of Staff source says, "If we are to be charged with the mission of defending that scope of area through use of the same power as the MSDE's real power (about 170 ships, or about 214,000 tons of ships, and about 200 planes) which will be seen as of 1976, when the Fourth Defense Plan is expected to be completed, then our 'defense networks' will inevitably become thinner. In a case of emergency, there may be no other way but to try to cope with the situation quickly and on the basis of the priority-first principle."

The MSDF is scheduled to regard Iwojima Island as one of the "footholds" for displaying its mobility in an emergency. The same Island lies at a point about 700 kilometers from Tokyo, and it is also situated at about the middle of the "Southeast Route Zone" extending from the direction of Australia to Japan. It had also been regarded as a strategic base, from the time of World War II.

It was in June, 1968, that Iwojima Island was returned by the US to Japan. At present, there are about 50 men belonging to the Iwojima Island Contingent, attached to the MSDF 4th Air Group (which is stationed at Shimofuse Air Base in Chiba Prefecture and which will be transferred to Atsugi Air Base in Kanagawa Prefecture by next March), on Iwojima Island. Those men are exercising management over the runway there, but there are no planes stationed there.

The runway is about 2,700 meters long. It is possible for both P2V7 and P2J anti-submarine patrol planes of the MSDF to use the runway for taking off or landing. Flights from Shimofusa Air Base and other bases to Iwojima Island for training purposes are made as occasion demands. Even if a decision is reached to use P3C-class planes of America's Lockheed, for example, as PXL planes (next-term anti-submarine patrol planes) which are scheduled to be put to practical use from around 1979, as planes following the P2J planes which are becoming worn-out, it is said that it will be OK to take off from or land on Iwojima Island.

As for its plan, the JDA intends to station anti-submarine patrol planes and anti-submarine patrol helicopters on Iwojima Island on a permanent basis, in an pergency, and to give full play to the strategic plue of the same Island. If this is so, it will mean that Japanese merchanc ships, which come back, with cargoes of resources on board, from the direction of Australia, will be protected by the anti-submarine patrol planes after entering into the scope of defense by the MSDF, to the north of the Mariana Islands.

It is said that from around the time of the First Defense Plan (fiscal 1958 to 1960), there had been the plan of using Iwojima Island as a base, latently within the JDA. This plan seems to have risen to the surface, touched off by the defense problem debates at the current Diet session. However, the said JDA source says. "In peace-time, we have no intention to station anti-submarine patrol planes on the same Island on a permanent basis." In peace-time, the use of the Island as a base for training, as at present, will probably be continued.

¥200 Million Worth of Awakening Drugs Confiscated

(Yokohama)

The Yokohama Customs House arrested on the night of 18th, in cooperation with the Welfare Ministry Kanto Shinetsu Area Narcotics Control the Awakening Drugs Control Law, and confiscated 1.2 kilograms of awakening drugs (worth ¥240 million).

LIN concealed the awakening drugs, dividing them into two light-brown paper parcels, at the back of a crane-car, which was parked in the neighborhood of the top roof of Breakwater No. 3 at the said Pier, at around 8:35 p.m. on the same day. It is confirmed that during the period of United States administration of Nanpo Shoto and other islands, the United States or local authorities have not taken any official action to transfer title to the property rights and ownership interests in these islands belonging to Japan and its nationals who during that period have been unable to enjoy the use, benefit or exercise of such property rights or interests due to measures taken by the United States of America.

Tokyo, April 5, 1968

Dear Mr. Ambassador,

The return to Japan of the administration over the Bonin and other islands which the United States Government has exercised under the terms of Article 3 of the Treaty of Peace with Japan has filled me with great satisfaction. Amongst the islands that are being returned, one of the hardest battles was fought on the island of Iwo-jima in the course of the Pacific War.

There is a memorial on top of Suribachiyama dedicated to the United States Marines who fought with great valor. I understand well the American desire to long preserve this memorial. At the same time this battlefield is one where our Japanese soldiers fought also with great courage. Thus, it is my hope, on the occasion of the return of Iwo-jima, that there will be erected a memorial in memory of the Japanese soldiers, and that these two memorials will long remain on this spot as a prayer for eternal peace between the two nations, and as a reminder of the valor and dedication of the brave men on both sides.

Therefore I wish to inform you that it is the intention of my Government to assure the United States that the memorial dedicated to the United States Marines will be preserved on Suribachi-yama and that United States personnel may have access thereto.

Yours sincerely,

Takeo Miki Minister for Foreign Affairs of Japan (A
